

Have you seen this?

Oystercatcher
(Haematopus ostralegus)

The Oystercatcher is one of many species at risk in Northumberland. We are working to develop and deliver a range of action plans that will protect these vulnerable species and their habitats.

By telling us where and when you saw this bird you will be helping us to compile a profile of the Oystercatcher across the county. This will enable us to enhance the region's biodiversity and safeguard the environment for the future.

Tell us by logging on to:
www.eyeproject.org.uk

www.northumberlandbiodiversity.org.uk

Working with Wildlife

